With so many agendas tied to the words of certain individuals, the control mechanism is forced to adapt to avoid becoming irrelevant. Thanks to the research into the esoteric conducted by the military in the late 20th century, there are now control methods available in the civilian world which appear quite alarming. Not least of all, real time mind control of political figures.

USA Politics Mind Control Military Industrial Complex Secret Societies Social Engineering

In July 2023, Democratic delegate Stacey Plaskett was seen to have an aide looking over her shoulder in some kind of trance like state. The individual in the trance was apparently an assistant to Ms. Plaskett and is considered by most to have been seconded from her conventional role as a regular DOJ staffer. Given Ms. Plaskett´s flamboyant profile and the sensitivity of the US Virgin islands, it is not entirely surprising that the Department of Justice were providing support for politicians in that particular constituency. The activities of notorious intelligence operative Jeffery Epstein and his procurer come fixer Ghislainne Maxwell, had been banded around all forms of media for several years and there was a lot of public scrutiny in regards to exactly what had been happening on Little St. James. The very dialog that was being choreographed included a question in relation to Hunter Bidens Laptop. A subject which has been connected to the infamous PizzaGate allegations.

Due to the synchronicity between the aides mannerisms and the speech being given by Stacey Plaskett, many observers reacted quite viscerally, with many making outright accusations of mind control. The incident was once again brought to light in January 2025 on social media and the footage spawned numerous threads across X (formerly Twitter) and Facebook. In addition many of the social media analysis journalism outlets picked up on the story. Other videos appeared confirming anomalous behaviour in Capitol Hill at the time.

Brazilian Psy-Handler

A Brazilian politician was seen to have a very similar situation in play with an aide seated behind him. Again the synchronicity between the aide mouthing words silently to themselves and the politician speaking was uncomfortably high.

The standard rebuttals across social media included the observation that the aide has to write the speech and stay up all night drinking coffee and fine tuning the details. Also that they are probably reading a teleprompter. Unfortunately, these standard rebuttals were even more conspicuously synchronous than the behaviour of the creepy aides. These stock answers and methodology are what identifies the presence of supposedly volunteer based narrative enforcement groups such as the 77th Brigade and HASBRA. Many have an openly admitted mandate of combating disinformation on social media. Obviously what constitutes disinformation must logically be the opinion of the military as they are clearly the most knowledgeable on that particular subject. However, it generally matters very little how many people call something an Ostrich when it walks, acts and quacks like a duck.

The scary eyed DOJ aide of Stacey Plaskett was fairly quacking up a storm in the many videos which suddenly spread across the social media politico community. The general reaction from the Twitterati was one of feeling really quite uncomfortable with the high strangeness of the situation. Many women expressed feelings of being creeped out and many men shouted about Adderall abuse. A few men also commented on the fact that the wild eyed consigliere was not unattractive and expressed high confidence in their capacity to remedy whatever ails her. The Americas are awash with psycho-active medical brand names and most carry a cultural significance. Brand pharma products such as Vicodin and Ambien are literally household names across all social strata. Adderall would be synonymous with Ritalin and Dexydrine, classified in a category of ¨Medication containing an amphetamine salt mixture used mainly to treat ADHD and narcolepsy¨. In addition, any amphetamine is considered to increase the users focus and attention to detail.

As to the accusations of mind control and shadowy governmental activity, these claims are not without a plausible basis. The US MIC was (and presumably still is) involved in many research methods which fall into the category of Psy-warfare. In addition, many influential and ubiquitous secret societies have a stated goal of unlocking the psychological powers of the human race. Most dismiss this research and investment with jokes about Men who Stare at Goats. However as has been stated previously in the pages of TEFLONRABBIT, those who have ownership of psychological control mechanisms will seek to apply their methods in the most effective and profitable way possible.

In the combined fields of electronic and psychological warfare, huge technological advances have been made over the past half a century and very few of them have been ushered into the public consciousness. There are literally hundreds of published papers by fringe scientists littering the internet which clearly indicate the presence of a consciousness field. From the accepted PCB mind influencing kits that can be easily purchased online to the reproducible and highly compelling works of Rupert Sheldrake and Russell Targ. The possible implications of a scientific rationale of the new age / spiritual concept of an aura or a soul, are hard to estimate. If the clandestine community can quantify an aura or a soul then they will certainly co-opt, coerce, control, commoditise, monetise and weaponise it. This is definitely something which any rational individual should consider as a problem.

The soul has been loosely defined by the ecclesiastical community as being represented by the mind, the will and the emotion. Controlling human emotions is a fairly well understood science, as is controlling free will. It would be fair to state that the average government expends substantial resources in the control of their population in regards to their will and emotions. Otherwise there is a tangible risk of a breakdown in public order and the ensuing chaos sets everybody back and the loss of profit is just... well, all very inconvenient. The mind however, represents a somewhat less manageable component in the combined product of the soul. Consequently, there are some inherent obstacles in monetising the overt mind control of civilian populations.

The USA has the Posse Comitatus Act, which limits the scope of the military in the control or influence of civil policy. Most of the Five Eyes members have something similar. However, many of the English speaking member states have populations which are considered as subjects of the Crown when it comes to limiting anything whatsoever. Thus, the Crown does pretty much whatever it wants and the subjects just have to suck it up. This unaccountable mentality has now spread throughout the entirety of the first world. Basically the governments of the entire planet now work on the basis that it is far easier to gain forgiveness than permission. It could be clearly linked to the privateer and professional politician industry which has essentially become nothing more than a very poor facsimile of a cult of identity politics.

What this all basically means is that the crazy looking chick behind Stacey Plaskett is probably an asset of some dodgy bunch of D.C spooks. Said unaccountable agency will have deployed her into the Team Plaskett infrastructure by way of DOJ secondment in some form of covert capacity as a psyonic skills handler. The particular and somewhat telegraphic technique being used for her to essentially deliver a speech through an elected official / human proxy, is probably part of a skill set used by alphabet agencies to ... get the best value. As to the science behind what is clearly happening, right in front of the eyes of the entire world, there are a few technologies which would facilitate such a dystopian reality.

As has been catalogued and repeatedly referenced on TEFLONRABBIT, technologies such as Hyper Sonic Sound, millimetre micro waves and neural linguistic programming can be used to effectively operate human beings as puppets. However humanity has a history with real time mind control. A legacy which is part of our reality not only today, but during the industrial revolution and most critically, in deep antiquity. It really is not a new thing and people in the public eye have been regularly puppeteered for what appears to be thousands of years.

Even more significant is quite how many people have been regularly puppeteered who are not in the public eye. Those such as the quite pretty, psycho looking puppeteer chick driving Stacey Plaskett must be gaining from their activity, but without ever admitting their actions. Their revenue streams are protected and they get to work the system from the inside. The problem is that they are not only puppeteering these elected public officials, but they themselves are being puppeteered. This is probably happening while they are in their amphetamine addled, concentrated focus but also at other times as well. The end result undoubtedly being people who have given over control of their personalities so many times, that whatever remains of their own personality is seriously diminished. They have literally lost the battle for ownership of their own mind, will and emotions.

☐ SELL YOUR SISTER'S SOUL? PRICE$_____

MAIL CONTRACT TO: SATAN, 666 BRIMSTONE RIDGE, HELL

Not only have these people given up their liberty for a little security but to be blunt they have demonstrably sold their soul. In all likelihood they probably did not voluntarily enter into a price negotiation to transfer custody of their divine essence. It serves the forces of evil much better to con an individual into selling their soul. Openly engaging in the transaction would lead to greater awareness, a free market economic philosophy and the subsequent application of market forces to what has always been preserved as a clandestine financial paradigm. If the man in the street knows that there are forces at work who wish to own his soul, he will naturally seek to gain as much value as possible for the vending of his product. That really does not suit those who favour usury and exploitation as a way of securing resources. They are far better served employing underhand tactics to effectively trick the man in the street into giving up his soul for free.

As usual it always comes back to the perpetual war between good and evil. The millions of people across social media who recoiled at the flashing glances of a power dressed, Team Plaskett psy-op asset were naturally reacting to the clear evidence of evil in their lives. Being unaccustomed to regularly having to spot witchcraft, these contemporary citizens of a global hyperspace reacted in the only way they knew how. They pointed to it and proclaimed it as being so disconcerting that it must surely be something to communicate to others. They were literally warning the rest of the herd that a predator was in their midst. What they failed to understand is that the predator could not be seen with the same eyes that they used to watch a crazy (yet quite coquettish) MK Ultra poster girl dutifully piloting Stacey Plaskett through her speech. The unseen predator was using Miss Mind Ktrl 2023 as human camouflage to control Plaskett and her audience from behind a curtain of deception. The type of thing associated with the dark operational habits of every clandestine force in history. From the sociopaths of the contemporary alphabet agencies to the Jesuit marines of the Vatican or the hierophants of the Priesthood of Amun.
